Reports received today, indicate that the number of Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs) in the three northern governorates of Iraq remains stable, and do not make attempts to cross international borders. An unknown number of people have moved to the Syrian border.

2.2. Both the International Committee of the Red Cross and the UN Office for Project Services (UNOPS) report, that only a few thousand of these IDPs in northern Iraq need assistance, which is provided by local authorities and relief agencies active in the region. The vast majority of the IDPs stay with families and friends and is not dependent on the relief agencies.

2.3. The return of people to Sulaymaniyah has reportedly slowed down possibly as a result of the bombardment of the Ansar Al-Islam Headquarters in the Halabja area and
