1. The EADRCC received the following report from the Emergency Situations and Civil Safety Service, MIA of Georgia 06.05.05 at 00:00:

"In disaster regions situation retains dangerous, flood processes are still active. Because of heavy rains the level of water is still high. In Shida region the river Lekhura's has destroyed one bridge because of high water level. The water level of the rivers Kura, Aragvi and Lekhura (Shida Kartli) is also very high. The landslide danger still remains in Adjara region (Khulo region). According to today's information 2 families (10 people) were evacuated. In the damaged areas restoring works take place actively, but there is deficit of technique. The situation still remains on dangerous level.

Experts have been sent to disaster regions to assess the situation and prepare recommendations concerning evacuation of the population and countermeasures against the flood.

There is still a critical need for international humanitarian assistance even if different nations have provided food and other equipment."
