1. Situation update:

Pakistan and the UN have extended the disaster relief phase from 30 days to 6 months. Revised estimates of Pakistan's NDMA indicate that the floods have affected 20.2 million people in 78 districts across the country, more than 10 percent of the total population. Approximately 2.2 million hectares of agricultural land have been damaged and over 1.9 million houses have been damaged or destroyed.

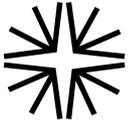

According to Pakistani officials, the relief period is likely to continue till end January 2011. Early recovery shall continue till September 2011. The reconstruction and rehabilitation will be started by the end of 2010.

Over 150,000 floods displaced families still require emergency assistance in Sindh province. In the Dadu district, populations along several embankments are still surrounded by water and have a great need for food, drinking water, medical services and shelter. As winter is fast approaching, shelter distribution across Sindh is an urgent priority. Provincial authorities estimate that 591,000 displaced people remain in more than 2,510 government camps across the province.

In Balochistan, access has improved in most flood-affected areas, although water is still present in parts of the Jaffarabad district.

In Kyber Pakhtunkhwa (KPK) and Federally Administered Tribal Areas (FATA), most of the displaced flood-affected families are reported to have returned to areas of origin, with just fewer than 5,000 families remaining in two camps.
