

NATO – EU Relations

NATO and the European Union (EU) are essential partners who share common values, strategic interests and a majority of member nations.

In recent years, the two organisations have developed closer cooperation, focused on concrete results and improved security for European citizens. This ranges from cyber defence and addressing hybrid threats, through maritime security to building up the capacities of partners beyond our borders.

NATO and the EU are working to expand their cooperation in addressing current and evolving security challenges such as resilience, emerging and disruptive technologies, the security implications of climate change, disinformation, and the growing geostrategic competition.

A closer relationship

NATO and the EU took their relationship to a higher level in July 2016 when, in a Joint Declaration, NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg, the President of the European Council Donald Tusk, and the President of the European Commission Jean-Claude Juncker pledged to boost cooperation between the two organisations. This commitment was renewed with another joint declaration on NATO-EU cooperation in July 2018. At their summit in June 2021, NATO leaders confirmed that the partnership with the EU remains essential, and declared the intention to continue to develop and deepen cooperation on current and evolving security challenges, such as strengthening resilience, maintaining our technological edge, and addressing the challenges to the rules-based international order.

Currently, NATO and the EU are cooperating on more than seventy measures, including:

- Measures to bolster resilience to hybrid threats, ranging from countering disinformation to civil preparedness.
- Operational cooperation including in the maritime field.
- Cooperation on military mobility in order to ensure that NATO forces can cross borders faster and more easily, when needed.
- Cooperation to ensure that our capability development efforts are coherent and mutually reinforcing.
- Exchange of information on cyber threats and the sharing of best practices on cyber security.
- Parallel and coordinated exercises.
- Efforts to support the local capacities of partner countries in the sectors of security and defence.
- Promoting the role of women in peace and security.

The NATO Secretary General and the EU High Representative regularly report to NATO Allies and EU Member States on this cooperation, which has seen substantial progress. The most recent Progress Report was issued in June 2021.

Political Dialogue

NATO and the EU hold regular political consultations on security issues in Europe and beyond. The NATO Secretary General engages with his EU counterparts and addresses the European Council, EU Ministerial meetings and the European Parliament several times a year. The EU High Representative / Vice-President of the European Commission (HRVP) regularly takes part in meetings of NATO Foreign and Defence ministers. The North Atlantic Council meets with the EU's Political and Security Committee, and NATO and EU representatives routinely engage with all NATO Allies and EU Member States through cross-briefings.

Political dialogue covers the full spectrum of issues relevant to both Organizations, including the geopolitical implications of COVID-19, cyber and hybrid threats, Russia, China, the Western Balkans, the Middle East, and Afghanistan. Since the start of the crisis in Ukraine, both organisations have worked to make sure that their actions complement each other, especially with regard to Russia.

Practical Cooperation

In 2021, NATO and the EU continued to deepen their cooperation. Progress has been made in a number of areas within the 74 common proposals, including in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic, such as countering disinformation and hostile propaganda, responding to cyber threats and strengthening resilience and civil preparedness. NATO and the EU maintain close contacts on their respective COVID-19 responses.

NATO continues to work hand in hand with the European Union to improve the transport, infrastructure and regulatory aspects of military mobility, with a focus on border-crossing legislation and procedures, including for the transportation of dangerous goods.

Both organisations continue to work to ensure coherence between their respective capability development efforts and priorities.

In cyber space, NATO and the EU exchange information on threats and vulnerabilities in real time.

NATO and the EU are also increasingly involved in each other's exercises. Parallel crisis management exercises with linked scenarios will take place in 2022 and 2023, as was already done in 2017 and 2018. This type of exercises helps NATO and the EU to improve their knowledge of each other's working methods and their ability to coordinate.

Working together in the field

NATO and the EU have long cooperated on crisis management and operations.

The EU's Operation EUFOR Althea in Bosnia and Herzegovina operates under the "Berlin Plus" arrangements, drawing on NATO planning expertise and on other Alliance's assets and capabilities. The Vice-Chief of Staff SHAPE is the Commander of Operation Althea, and the EU Operation Headquarters (OHQ) is located at SHAPE.

In Kosovo, the NATO peacekeeping force KFOR works closely in the field with the EU's Rule of Law Mission (EULEX) to bring peace and stability in the region.

NATO's training and capacity-building in Iraq, implemented through the NATO Mission Iraq, is undertaken in close cooperation with the EU's stabilisation support in the country, ensuring complementarity of effort.

NATO and EU cooperate closely on maritime security. NATO has deployed a maritime force to the Aegean Sea to conduct reconnaissance, monitoring and surveillance of illegal crossings, supporting Turkish and Greek authorities and the EU. In the Central Mediterranean, NATO's Operation Sea Guardian supported EU Operation Sophia until its termination with information and logistics.

Navy officers from NATO and EU Operations work together regularly in the Mediterranean Sea.
